Four Producers In Search of a Script

A discussion between CBC-TV producers ROBERT ALBAN of Halifax, JOHN THORNE of Vancouver, ARTHUR ZIGOURAS of Winnipeg, and CHARLES JARROTT of Toronto.

Arthur Zigouras

ALBAN: Before we talk about our preferences in TV drama, I think we'd agree that, given any kind of a good script we would do our level best with it. I mean, that we draw inspiration from the script: read it, see it, and then try to bring it to life.

THORNE: That's right. Whatever the type, the director's challenge is to bring people alive. That is so, vitally alive that the audience is gripped by the content of the play. The best compliment to a director from a viewer should be: "That was a short half-hour!"

ZIGOURAS: And we're not getting enough good Canadian scripts. Everybody is influenced by the mill of the U.S.A. The Canadian writer is peeking over the shoulder of his American cousin and copying! The results, like most cribbing, are bad.

JARROTT: Of course, some types of TV drama are easier to realize successfully than others, aren't they?

ZIGOURAS: Agreed. Before coming to the CBC, I directed thirty or more stage plays. I felt then that my forte was comedy; I enjoy comedy much more than heavy drama! But—and this is the paradoxical point — I don't think I like doing comedy on television at this stage.

ALBAN: I most enjoy producing comedy, too. But really funny or clever comedy scripts are hard to come by.

ZIGOURAS: Yes, either they're badly drawn situation comedy farces, replete with burlesque people and incredible situations, or they're too preciously witty to be funny.

JARROTT: Give me the light macabre! The kind of thing I've been doing in The Unforeseen series. I like the script that doesn't pretend to be anything more than a fascinating little story with several twists to it.

THORNE: What I look for, in any kind of script, is richness of characterization, whether it be a large role or the most minor. We are dealing always with human beings, and the close-up technique of the television camera permits us to view this in a microscopic way.

JARROTT: Effective dialogue—that's very important. Make every line count, and let the lines add depth to the characterization.

ALBAN: Well, a rich character can bolster a rather insipid story, but I feel there must be a strong story-line to anything I produce.

JARROTT: Yes, being involved with people's emotions is interesting, but you can have too much of it.

THORNE: But you don't find that many writers think of a good story, but in plotting it they more often force the situation on the character, rather than allow the character to create the situation?

ZIGOURAS: The deus ex machina type of resolution! I get so many of those. I hate the "come-to-realize" resolution, too. For example, the man is a brute for twenty-seven minutes of the play; everybody tells him he's a brute but he ignores it, denies it; and then in the final denouement he comes to realize suddenly (for no obvious reason) that everybody is right.

ALBAN: I suppose we all have our unfavourite plots. Currently, mine is any script involving a young Canadian couple, a dog, and a set described as "modern, tastefully furnished apartment of a light-hearted young couple." The man is always called Bob, the girl Betty, or Toni.

ZIGOURAS: I seem to have been slushing around in murder and suicide plots recently. Something surprises me and that is most writers seem to be discovering death for the first time, as if it were something new! I'd like to see a writer write a half-hour play about the mystery of living rather than the mystery of dying. And writers seem more interested in the crime itself (usually a gimmick thing) than in the murderer. What prompts him? What kind of man is he? Why does he kill? How does it affect him? I wish the writer would ask himself why before he asks how.

THORNE: That brings us back to characterization, doesn't it? So many plays, I feel, have a static quality simply because there is a sterility of thought in the characterization. Some of the greatest tragedies have the central character unable to cope with his situation: but man always has the brains to try. And when a character can create a new situation through intellectual action, the moment is more often exciting. That's one element I look for when reading plays.

JARROTT: I'd like to see more subtle characterization. To give an example: in a recent Unforeseen script I produced ("The Mask," by Vincent O'Connor), we had a police inspector. He wasn't just a man who asked questions and wrote down the answers. We saw him incessantly smoking, dropping ash all over the place, and cooking his supper on a grill in the corner of his office. All little touches that rounded off the character.

ALBAN: I tend to run from cops-and-robbers stuff, well written or not. It's hard to fight a cliché, even if the characters are good stock. It worries me that there are more and more clichés every (Please turn to page 31)

AT YOUR REQUEST

Readers will find in this issue of CBC Times a new method of listing television programs. All station listings and program notes pertaining to any one day's viewing have been grouped together so that the viewer has only to open his "Times" at one place in order to see the entire day's schedule.

This is, of course, not really a "new" method at all. Actually, it is a return to the system used for the past 10 years in the CBC Times (and for eight years before that in the CBC Prairie Region Program Schedule). The system was changed last fall when CBC Times began carrying program listings for all the private stations. It was felt at that time it might be more convenient for viewers to be able to see at a glance their own station's listings for the week. Many readers have said, however, that they preferred the day-by-day system of presenting program information, and it is at their request that the change is being made.

The methods used for presenting information on radio and television programs are now the same in every respect.

Since CBC Times is simply a guide to radio and television programs and personalities and carries no regular "editorial," we should like to seize this opportunity to thank our many readers for their kind comments on the enlarged edition of the "Times." We feel that it has served the purpose for which it was intended—to provide prairie viewers with an advance schedule of CBC radio and television programs not available from any other source. It is hardly necessary to add that a large part of the success of the new "Times" is due to the magnificent co-operation of the affiliated private television stations, without which this venture would have been impossible.

Leonard Bernstein

The present conductor of the New York Philharmonic combines the talents of two of his illustrious predecessors—Gustav Mahler and Walter Damrosch.

Bernstein's fame, like Mahler's, rest equally on his ability as a serious composer and as a conductor. And, like Damrosch, Bernstein has devoted much of his time and energy to promoting the cause of good music, particularly among children.

Bernstein, however, has two decided advantages. As an immensely popular composer for the Broadway stage ("Wonderful Town," "West Side Story," etc.) he has become a well-known public figure, even among the non-musical public, which Mahler never was. And as a music educator he has the miracle of television at his disposal—an unheard-of dream for Damrosch, who in 1927 organized a regular music appreciation hour for school children throughout Canada and the United States. These radio broadcasts were the culmination of Damrosch's lifelong work as director of children's concerts in New York.

Bernstein's "Young People's Concerts" are presented once a month on CBC-TV, direct from New York.

In a recent "Critically Speaking" review Constance Garneau admitted that she didn't care much for music on television—"not even symphony, which I much prefer on radio." Leonard Bernstein's children's concerts were the exception, she said: "The Saturday performance of Leonard Bernstein's concerts for young people are full of unexpected delight, and the television cameras seem wonderfully suited to his particular art."

Bernstein's "particular art" will be demonstrated again this Saturday, March 28, in the fourth of this year's Young People's Concerts.

Stations of the Cross

CBC Winnipeg film producer FELIX LAZARUS describes a special Good Friday presentation on CBWT

In the St. Boniface Basilica there is a collection of religious statuary that is probably unique in Canada. Along the north and south walls, the fourteen Stations of the Cross are represented by large seven by five-foot panels in which the incidents of The Way are depicted by half-size figures in three-quarter relief. The statuary are extremely lifelike, from the expression of suffering and sorrow on the face of the figure of Christ, to the veins standing out on the arms of the man nailing Him to the Cross.

Originally, the Stations were paintings done by the artist Bouriché in France. From these, Maison Rouillard made molds for casting the statuary in plaster. In 1919 they were brought over from France and hung on the walls of the Basilica.

In a film to be shown on CBWT at 6:30 p.m. on Good Friday, detail from this statuary is used to illustrate selected passages from Bach's Passion of Our Lord According to St. Matthew. In order to facilitate matching music to picture, large photos were made of each Station, and over these translucent sheets of paper were placed, with each shot delineated in grease pencil. During shooting in the Basilica, these pre-outlined shots were followed in every detail. The film was then cut to match the rhythm and tempo of the music. On the air, the film will be screened silent, accompanied by the music played back on disc. The music is on Beaver Recording No. LPS002. Sir Ernest MacMillan conducts the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and the Mendelssohn Choir. Soloists are James Milligan, Edward Johnson, Lois Marshall, Mary Morrison, Jean Newton, Margaret Stilwell, James Lamond, Donald Brown, and Eric Tredwell.

Good Friday on CBC-TV—

"The Family Reunion"

a play by T. S. Eliot

Death, scandal and despair supersede a birthday celebration when the tortured son of a British noblewoman returns to the ancestral estate after a seven-year absence. Summoned by his mother, the cold and dominating Dowager Lady Monchensey, to be the chief guest at her party, the son, Harry, arrives with a surprise birthday gift—a murder confession.

The Family Reunion, T. S. Eliot's drama of ancestral guilt, sin and purgation, will be televised by the CBC in a special 90-minute Good Friday presentation March 27.

The play is a combination of the classic suspense tale and intellectual parlour sport, with overtones of Greek tragedy. Ghosts (the Furies of Greek mythology), personifying the feelings of guilt which obsess him, pursue Harry. He finds it impossible to explain his unhappy state of mind to anyone, or to understand the cause of it himself. With the help of his aunt, Agatha, he comes to know the nature of his misery. He learns that the remorse which tortures him is remorse for sins committed by his mother and dead father before he was born.

The responsibility to purge the family of his parents' guilt has been passed on to him. With understanding, Harry finds peace of mind and the Furies are transformed into the Eumenides (the Kindly Ones), instruments not of blind vindictiveness, but of purification, who will guide him in his search for redemption. In some ways—chiefly in that one character is responsible for purging the sins of others—the drama parallels, although on a smaller scale, the story of Christ.

Ann Casson will play the role of the proud Dowager Lady Monchensey, the same part her mother, Dame Sybil Thorndike played in the 1956 London production of The Family Reunion. Miss Casson made her debut on the professional stage at the age of five in her native London, England, when she played Tiny Tim in the Old Vic production of A Christmas Carol. During the next few years she toured South Africa and Egypt with her parents, Sir Lewis Casson and Dame Sybil Thorndike, and played children's parts in a number of English stage and film productions. Later, she joined, at various times, the Coventry Repertory Theatre, the Old Vic Company, and Michael Langham's company in England.

Since coming with her husband, producer-director Douglas Campbell, to Canada in 1954, Miss Casson has toured with the Canadian Players, and has played at Stratford in The Beggar's Opera. Her first appearance on CBC television was in 1957 in Peer Gynt.

Lloyd Bochner, a frequent performer on CBC television, will play the role of Harry. He last appeared in the March 3 Folio production of The Master of Santiago. Katharine Blake will play the role of Agatha, Harry's sympathetic aunt, and Charmion King will appear as

Planning the Playoffs

Much behind-the-scenes activity has gone into planning TV and radio coverage of the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs which start this week. N.H.L. hockey's annual grand finale theoretically can involve one or two teams in Canada and two or three teams in the U.S., depending on the order in which the six teams in the league finish. As this is written, the finish of the regular season is two weeks away and the final order is thus not established. Playoff broadcast plans have had to be made as early as possible, however, and all eventualities have had to be taken into account. Maple Leaf Gardens and the Montreal Forum (home rinks of the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Montreal Canadiens respectively) are known quantities, for example, but what arrangements might be made to bring "live" TV and radio coverage by Canadian commentators to the Canadian networks direct from the U.S. rinks involved.

To get the answers, CBC's supervising producer of sports, George Retzlaff, embarked a month ago on a fact-finding tour of Chicago, New York, Boston and Detroit—each of whom has a team in the N.H.L. and could become a playoff site should their particular team win a playoff berth. Retzlaff found the hockey brass in the various cities reluctant to discuss possibilities—seems they just didn't want to talk about the playoffs for fear of jinxing their team's chances of getting into them. Eventually they got down to it, however, and with this hurdle cleared George turned to Mary, the girl Harry's mother wished him to marry.

T. S. Eliot, the British playwright, won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1948, three years after The Family Reunion was first produced in London. The play has had two New York showings, in 1947 and again in 1958. Mario Prizick will produce it for CBC Folio.

another—the technical pick-ups from each rink. The problem here stems from certain union restrictions which preclude the possibility of taking Canadian technical crews and facilities into the United States to originate broadcasts (and vice versa). Fortunately, the four U.S. cities are well serviced by TV and radio stations and it will be possible to co-operate with local stations covering the games. In each case the TV and radio pick-ups for the Canadian networks will

PROGRAM NOTES MARCH 22

Report From U.N.

Randy Kraft reports on the week's events at United Nations.

Country Calendar

This week Saskatchewan farm broadcast commentator Dave Innes tells of a recent visit to a modern seed-cleaning plant and discusses modern methods of broiler production. He will show a film on the operation of a large-scale poultry farm. (CBC Winnipeg film).

Defence Against Tomorrow

Four well-known Canadian newsmen (see opposite page) question top military and political thinkers of the U.S. and Canada about Canada's role in western defence in the post-Avro Arrow era. Among those to be interviewed are Donald A. Quarles, U.S. deputy secretary of defence; General Matthew B. Ridgway, former U.N. commander in Korea; Dr. Henry Kissinger, director of defence studies at Harvard University; Gen. James L. McCormack, vice-president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and former director of research and development for the U.S. Air Force; Senator George D. Aiken, chairman of the Canada-U.S. subcommittee, Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Sir John Slessor, marshal of the R.A.F.; Sir Robert Watson-Watt, inventor of radar; Thomas K. Finletter, former secretary of the U.S. Air Force; Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, former Canadian Army Chief of Staff; and Dr. O. M. Solandt, vice-president (research) of C.N.R., and former chairman of the Defence Research Board of Canada. (See story page 7).

Timmy's Easter Parade of Stars

Direct from the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, the annual Easter Seal benefit program. Line-up of guests includes Juliette, soprano Teresa Stratas, Billy O'Connor and the O'Connorettes, Toronto Symphony conductor Walter Susskind (who will appear as a piano soloist), The Rhythm Pals, The Carl Tapscott Singers, Tommy

Defence Against Tomorrow

A one-hour television documentary on Canada's role in western defence, Sunday on CBC-TV

by Michael Hind-Smith, CBC Ottawa

THE Government's decision to abandon the Avro Arrow has been described as Canada's recognition that we are now in the missile age. The threats which the CF-105 was designed to combat have been superseded by massive developments in Soviet missile technology.

What do these developments mean? Now that the Arrow is dead, what new contribution can Canada make to the defence of the West?

These are just some of the questions asked by four of Canada's top reporters as they prepare Defence Against Tomorrow — a one-hour

CBC television documentary on the implications of the missile age for Canada's defence policies, to be presented on CBC-TV this Sunday afternoon, March 22.

The obsolescence of military equipment such as the Arrow is only one of the many problems which Canada faces in the search for defences today to combat the weapons of tomorrow. Is Canada being forced to play a military role in the missile age in which our national sovereignty and independence is threatened; a role beyond our economic capacity; a role alien to our political and moral principles as a nation?

To examine the broader issues behind the Arrow decision, Charles Lynch, Blair Fraser, James M. Minifie, and Stanley Burke have

Father Knows Best

Domestic comedy series starring Robert Young and Jane Wyatt. This week—"Always Plan Ahead." Jim Anderson feels that his children lack the ability to plan ahead and decides to teach them a lesson in foresight.

December Bride

Domestic comedy series starring Spring Byington, Frances Rafferty, Verna Felton, and Henry Morgan. This week Lily (Spring Byington) finds herself unemployed when she advises the son of a wealth advertiser to follow a showbusiness career, rather than follow in his father's footsteps.

Showtime

With singers Joyce Sullivan and Bob Goulet, Howard Cable and his orchestra, the Showtime Dancers, the Bill Brady Singers, and this week's special guest-droll U.S. television comedian Herb Shriner. Star of his own TV show, Shriner got his start at the age of 17 as a harmonica player. He has since then appeared on radio, the stage, and acted in television plays. From Toronto.

Ed Sullivan Show

Second of Ed Sullivan's "continental" shows. This week's program was filmed in Portugal. Guest stars include Maurice Chevalier, Jacqueline McKeever, the Ames Brothers, Richard (Mr. Pastry) Hearne, fado singers Celeste Rodrigues and Carlos Ramos, contortionist Norberti (doing his famous barrel act in a Lisbon street), and the Portuguese Racho Folk Dancers. Viewers will also visit the International Carnival at Estoril and the Grand Society Ball at the magnificent 200-year-old Quelez Palace.

The World's Stage

True drama series with Dr. Frank Baxter as host. This week—"A Stubborn Fool." A poor Italian, ferryman, determined to make his mark in the world, decided to build a toll bridge across the river Arno, despite the jeers and derision of his fellow villagers.

PROGRAM NOTES

MARCH 23

Dear Phoebe

Situation comedy starring Peter Lawford as an advice-to-the-lovelorn columnist. This week Peter tries to prove to Marcia that he appeals to children.

Open House

THE GAY HATTER—Since prehistoric times women, and often men, have been twining leaves, flowers, and even fruit in their hair, so it might be said that the hats Gay Hoyt will make for viewers today are typical of the oldest head gear in the world. Using light bases—often a simple web of wire—Gay shows how to construct spring and summer creations at very small expense.

YOU'RE THE BUYER—Most of us have gone through the disappointment of finding a new raincoat is far from waterproof. Today Mary Humphries looks at a number of fabrics and finishes that provide varying degrees of water repellancy and explains what can be learned from labels and brand names.

Today's program will also include an item in the travel series entitled PASSPORT.

P.M. Party

Audience participation women's program with emcee Gordie Tapp, vocalist Donna Miller, Rex Loring, Rudy Toth and his orchestra, and Daniel the Spaniel. Today's guest-juggler Lottie Brunn. From Toronto.

Howdy Doody

Today Ross the Builder from Whistletown pays Doodyville a visit to invite everyone to take part in a hobby show. Everyone wants to develop a hobby for the show.

Follow Me

Trips for juniors to points of interest around the Vancouver area.

Adventures of Chick

This week—"The Belfry." Chick and Holly break into an old bell tower to ring the bells in celebration of the town's 100th birthday. Holly is afraid that the tower is haunted, but they discover the secret of good bell-ringing.

Mickey Mouse Club

1. Darlene Gillespie and Pecos Bill—a song and dance number with a western flavour by the Mouseketeers. 2. Annette (serial)—"Steady Gets an Idea"—Steady, one of the high school crowd, has an idea to bring Laura and Annette together. 3. Flowers and Trees—a Disney cartoon which makes the woods come to life.

CBWT—How About That?

This week Jim Mitchell presents a family film on the importance of correctly fitting shoes for both children and adults. Jim will also interview a nutritionist and a chick hatchery specialist. Some baby chicks will be on display. From Winnipeg. (CBWT-5:00 p.m.).

CBWT—Scan

This week—a 15-minute guided tour of CBWT's Studio 41 and its control room. Warren Davis will act as tour guide. (CBWT-6:45 p.m.).

The Millionaire

This week—"The Thorne Sisters." When three sisters receive a check for a million dollars they decide to go on a spending spree.

Cross Canada Hit Parade

With vocalists Joyce Hahn and Wally Koster and Bert Niosi and his orchestra. Special guests tonight are singers Patti Lewis and Frankie Laine. Patti will sing her first recording—"Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me!" She recorded the number in Hollywood, but it was pressed and released (on the London label) in Canada.

Danny Thomas Show

Comedy series starring Danny Thomas as Danny Williams, New York entertainer. This week—"Latin Lover."

Cannonball

Canadian film series about a trucker and his family. This week—"Fall Out." Starring Paul Birch as Cannonball, Bill Campbell as his partner, and Beth Lockerbie as Cannonball's wife.

been questioning some of the top military and political thinkers in the United States and Canada. Their opinions, in specially filmed interviews, form the basis of this enquiry into Canada's next big decision in defence—if not the Arrow, then what?

Defence Against Tomorrow begins in Washington where CBC correspondent James M. Minifie examines where we stand now in our defence preparedness. The U.S. deputy secretary of defence, Donald A. Quarles, explains Canada's integration with the United States in the defence of North America through NORAD. Film released from the Pentagon shows U.S. missile development and the striking power of the Strategic Air Command—the threat of massive nuclear retaliation on which our strategy of deterrence is based. Other Washington interviews involve members of the Senate armed services, preparedness and foreign relations committees. Canadian film from the Department of National Defence shows Canada's present contribution to Western defence.

From this view of present Western defence in Washington, the program moves to New York for an assessment of the threats of tomorrow. CBC correspondent Stanley Burke asks the question, "Have we armed for the wrong kind of war?" Several leading authorities on Soviet strategy challenge the present assumptions of defence planners. They suggest that we are not prepared to meet the real threats posed by the Soviets. Soviet ground forces and submarines, the dangers of brush-fire war and non-military aggression are some of these threats.

With this background of information on film, the program moves back to Canada where Blair Fraser, Ottawa editor of Maclean's Magazine, sounds out Canadian opinion. What are the alternatives for Canada? Is there a distinct role which Canada can and should play in Western defence, militarily, economically, or politically? Are we free to plan our own defence policy, or does the missile age mean that defence integration with the United States will gradually erode our sovereignty and diminish our freedom to choose?

The program will be assembled "live" in Ottawa when Charles Lynch, bureau chief for Southam News Services, joins with the other three to present their joint findings.

Defence Against Tomorrow is a controversial program of authoritative comment and opinion on the most crucial decisions of defence which Canada has had to make since the Second World War.

Is Canadian sovereignty the price we pay for integration with the U.S. in North American defence? A week after Defence Against Tomorrow, on March 29, the four commentators will meet again in Ottawa to assess the conclusions of the program on Citizens' Forum. Fraser, Lynch, Minifie and Burke each have sharply contrasting opinions on the alternatives facing Canada in our decisions on defence and sovereignty.

Parliamentary News

An international group of broadcasters met recently with the speakers of the two chambers of Parliament—the Honourable Mark Drouin of the Senate and the Honourable Roland Michener of the Commons—to request that radio and television representatives be given facilities comparable to those enjoyed by the Parliamentary press gallery in providing coverage of Parliamentary sessions. The spokesman for the delegation was acting CBC President E. L. Bushnell. Also present were Sir Ian Jacob, director general of the BBC (which wishes to appoint its own news correspondent in Ottawa) and other prominent figures in Canadian broadcasting.

The broadcasters said that the developments of modern times have brought about the need for them to improve and extend facilities to meet the demands of their audience and to provide full and balanced reporting of Parliamentary proceedings. The request for equal facilities for broadcasters was made, they said, not only as an aid to reporting in Canada itself but also in reporting news of Parliament abroad. Precedent for such a plan had already been set at the Parliament at Westminster and in the U.S. Congress at Washington.

celebrated today in the Jewish community, and Miss Anne DuMoulin continues her discussion of "People and their problems." (CBWT-2:00 p.m.).

Open House

WHAT'S THE IDEA?—Have you ever tried to visualize truculence?—or wondered what "long-felt wants" look like? Perhaps it's only a special breed of people—like Vancouver humourist David Brock—who puzzle about such things. Mr. Brock is an Open House guest today. Brock, incidentally, is the inventor of "spuzum," a special variety of language.

"Salad Days"

BARRY MORSE

A Canadian production of the hit British musical "Salad Days" will be the CBC Folio presentation this Tuesday evening. Arrangements have been made by the CBC with Bill Freedman and Barry Morse, producers of the successful Toronto Crest Theatre and New York productions to present a somewhat condensed version of their "tour de force" for the television audience.

Norman Campbell, who has been associated with a number of and interview the guests associated with them. From Toronto.

CBC Folio

"Salad Days," the hit New York, London and Toronto musical by Julian Slade and Dorothy Reynolds, directed by Barry Morse (co-producer of the Toronto and New York production), and featuring the original New York cast, led by Barbara Franklin and Richard Easton. Norman Campbell, producer. From Toronto. (See story this page).

CBWT—Saddle Songs

Starring Connie Holt and Earl Cummings with the Sons of the Saddle (Vic Siebert, Gene Siebert, Johnny Allen, Reg Kelln, Wally Diduck and Monte Levine). Emcee is Lloyd Robertson. (CBWT-10:15 p.m.).

CBC musical shows, including The Mikado and The Nutcracker, will produce it for television. The director is Barry Morse.

Barbara Franklin and Richard Easton, who had the lead roles in the 1958 Crest Theatre and New York productions, will again head the cast of twelve. They play two newly graduated university students who are hired to take care of a magic street piano, and eventually find themselves in a flying saucer searching for their lost charge.

No less fantastic than its plot is the reception Salad Days has had from its audiences, particularly from those in England. Julian Slade and Dorothy Reynolds, the authors, expected their hastily written, thoroughly lighthearted show to run no more than three weeks. Almost five years later, London audiences are still flocking to it. Toronto theatre-goers, in their turn, welcomed the Canadian production with more than ordinary enthusiasm, first in 1957 when it played at Hart House and again in the fall of 1958 at the Crest Theatre.

Bill Freedman and Barry Morse took the comedy to New York last fall where it played at the Barabazon-Plaza Theatre off-Broadway from November 10 to January 18, when it fell victim to high production costs and the prolonged newspaper strike which brought about a general letdown in theatre attendance. Its ten-week run was the longest of any Canadian production in New York to date.

Barry Morse's 90-minute television adaptation of the comedy is, essentially, a shortened version of the Crest Theatre and New York productions. As much of the flavor of the New York show as possible is being preserved. Even the temptation to enlarge the orchestration has been resisted. Just as in the

Rope Around The Sun

The last in a series of programs featuring Stu Davis. Today Stu sings more western songs and tells a story about his special cowboy friend, Walter. From Winnipeg.

Walt Disney Presents

This week—"The Boston Tea Party."

One of a Kind

Panelists Alan Manings, Lloyd Bochner, Rita Greer Allen and Kathy McNeil try to identify real and imaginary objects associated with famous people. Alex Barris is moderator. From Toronto.

Kraft Music Hall

Variety show with emcee-comedian Milton Berle. This week's guests are Canadian-born actress Yvonne De Carlo and The Four Lads vocal group.

Bat Masterson

This week — "The Tumbleweed Wagon." The blind love of a beautiful woman for a notorious outlaw almost spells disaster for Bat Masterson in tonight's episode. Gene Barry stars as Bat Masterson, Paul Lambert will be featured as Luke Steiger, a ruthless murderer, and Fay Spain will be seen in the role of Julie Poe, his lovely fiancée. Bat, deputized as a Federal officer, arrives in Concho to transport Luke Steiger to Fort Smith where he will be tried for murder. The night before their departure, Steiger's young and mistakenly loyal girlfriend, Julie Poe, helps the outlaw to escape in a daring jail break. She is captured. Locking Julie in the Tumbleweed Wagon the Court's Black Maria), Masterson starts for Fort Smith where she will face trial. Bat figures the outlaw will attack the wagon to save his fiancée. When he does, Bat almost loses his life because he cannot bring himself to shooting a woman. Although wounded by Steiger, Bat manages to outsmart the killer and in the final showdown, a warning from Julie saves the lawman's life. Julie was swung over to Bat's side because Steiger revealed his true colours.

MEET YOUR N.H.L. STARS

N.H.L. stardom. Only after seven years of minor league success and major league failure did he establish himself as a top N.H.L. performer. Along the route he had been rejected by the Detroit Red Wings, New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens.

After four good - but - not - outstanding years in the American Hockey League, Bronco was sent to the Detroit farm team at Edmonton in the Western Hockey League in 1954. Playing with Johnny Bucyk, he exploded for a league record of 50 goals and 60 assists and earned himself a crack at the N.H.L. with the New York Rangers, who bought his contract from Detroit.

Bronco failed in New York, scoring only 12 goals in the complete 1955-56 season. The following year he was purchased by Montreal and sent almost immediately to the Canadiens' American League farm team at Rochester.

Horvath was disappointed but kept hustling, and his 81-point season earned him another N.H.L. try with Boston. Teamed again with Bucyk and Vic Stasiuk, he was an immediate success as a Bruin. He scored 30 goals and added 36 assists to lead all Bruins in scoring and led his line, nick-named "The Uke Line," to a total of 72 goals. While Stasiuk and Bucyk are Ukrainians, Horvath is actually of Croatian descent.

Horvath, who possesses a terrific wrist shot, has proved the theory upon which coaches so often dwell — "If you shoot often enough, the goals will come." He is perpetually firing rubber at the net as his husky linemates dig out the puck and feed it to him. Although he can and does set up Bucyk and Stasiuk (both over-20 goal scorers the past two years), Horvath is more of a scorer than play-maker.

Bronco started slowly this year and was just getting in stride when he lost an argument to the Leafs' Bobby Pulford in a game in Toronto. He charged at Pulford, took Bob's elbow in his face, had his jaw broken and, at the same time, was assessed a minor penalty for charging. Doug Mohns had his jaw re-broken in the same game.

Both Horvath and Mohns missed 25 games and now wear masks to protect their weakened jaws while playing. When he returned Horvath picked up the faltering fifth-place Bruins and has led them into contention for a second place finish. With six games left to play he has scored 18 goals and was almost certain to again enter the charmed 20-goal circle.

While Stasiuk and Bucyk performed creditably without Horvath they've looked much better since his return.

Horvath is married and makes his off-season home in his birthplace, Port Colborne, Ontario.

original show, there will be only four musicians.

A few of the less functional scenes have had to be cut, and some parts eliminated. Originally the twelve actors played 52 parts. In the CBC version they play 40 roles. All but one member of the New York cast, Eric Christmas, who has other commitments in New York, will appear in "Salad Days" on Tuesday. Norman Welsh, his replacement, is no newcomer to the show, however. He was in the original Canadian production at Hart House.

Because of the many parts played by most of the cast, make-up and costume changes are going to present problems in the television production. The 15-minute intermission of the stage production has been shortened to one-and-a-half minutes for television. Further, because of the close-ups on TV, make-up is ordinarily applied much more carefully than is necessary for the stage. When there is time, a full hour is often spent doing one make-up job.

A new song has been added to the show since it last appeared in Canada. Let's Take a Stroll Through London was first used in the New York production.

Besides Barbara Franklin, Richard Easton and Norman Welsh, the cast includes Powys Thomas, Walter Burgess, Gillie Fenwick, Norma Renault, Jack Creley, Mary Savidge, June Sampson, Tom Kneebone and Louise Troy. Alan and Blanche Lund are staging the dances and musical numbers.

PROGRAM NOTES

MARCH 26

Nursery School Time

Songs and stories for tots, with Maman Fonfon. From Montreal.

Douglas Fairbanks Presents

This week — "Winning Sequence," the story of two gentle spinsters who throw caution to the wind. (Not on CBWT).

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

"The Greenhouse Story," about locally-grown plants and flowers including the growing of an Easter lily, is told on today's program. To the accompaniment of sacred music, the lilies are brought to the altar of a Winnipeg church. Mr. John Cholak is guest on this part of the program. Other items on today's program — a tantalizing recipe for the seasonally popular ham, from Mr. A. R. Gauer, and another commentary on the current session of the Manitoba Legislature. (CBWT-2:00 p.m.).

Open House

KEEP IN TRIM — Gwen Vernon, assisted by pianist John Coveart, demonstrate some more figure-preserving exercises. (Other items on today's program to be announced).

Speaking French

French lessons for children and adults, with Prof. Jean-Paul Vinay, assisted by fashion model Phyllis Clapperton. From Montreal.

Maggie Muggins

Farmer Father has decided to sell Chester Pig. Maggie and her friends enter a contest to win the money so they can buy Chester at the county fair. From Toronto.

Gumby

Gumby is stranded on the moon, and discovers that the rocks have come to life. He barely escapes being surrounded by the strange moon creatures, and is in real trouble until his father finds a very long ladder and climbs up to rescue him.

Whistletown

Today—"Fire Hall." Mayor Jacques has promised to write a song for the Canadian Mayors Association, and has trouble coming up with an idea. Ferally, Foster and Floradora save the day with a song they have written.

CBWT—Hobby Corner

Glynn Morris' guest this week is again Mr. Jack Robbins, who continues his science series by showing how to build a spintheroscope and radiation kit. (CBWT-5:00 p.m.).

Music Makers '59

With Jack Kane and his orchestra and vocalist Sylvia Murphy. This week orchestra member Moe Koffman steps out front for a feature number with his own jazz group. Jack and the orchestra play a medley of Frank Sinatra songs, and Sylvia sings "I Feel Sorry for the Boy." From Toronto.

The Unforeseen

"Mr. Brisher's Treasure," a comedy adapted for TV by Tod Rhode from a short story by H. G. Wells. The story concerns the adventures of an unemployed young man who becomes engaged to the daughter of a highly respectable family and discovers that their garden is the resting place for a treasure chest. Andrew Allan, producer. From Toronto.

Wyatt Earp

Western, Starring Hugh O'Brian as Marshal Wyatt Earp. This week—"Vultures." Marshal Earp saves a young couple from the clutches of two greedy bounty hunters.

Loretta Young

"Black Lace Valentine." An unemployed Valentine creates a romantic mystery in a young couple's lives.

Explorations

"Fertility and Survival," first of four Explorations programs under the general title "Tomorrow is Now." William White Howells, Harvard University anthropologist, and F. Clarke Fraser, McGill University geneticist, speculate on the future of the human race. (See story on the series, "Tomorrow is Now" on this page.)

"Tomorrow is Now"

David Walker of the CBC Talks and Public Affairs Department, Toronto, describes a new four-part series he has prepared for CBC-TV's "Explorations"

"The most obvious threat to the survival of civilization today is nuclear war between the present world powers . . . but in the long run it is not necessarily the most serious one. Most of our problems will be directly related to the changes which are taking place in the world as a result of the upsurge of science and technology." The speaker is Harrison Brown, professor of geochemistry at the California Institute of Technology. The future he suggests forms the subject of a new series of four programs which begins this Thursday on Explorations night.

In showing why Tomorrow is Now, Explorations considers the machines, drugs and wonders produced by the constantly expanding technology by which we presently live. Specifically, these programs show how this technology breeds new difficulties of its own as it becomes more complex. For example, an antibiotic effective in the treatment of a deadly bacteria is developed. But as time passes, some types of the bacteria prove resistant to the drug and new antibiotics are required to treat them.

This sort of difficulty extends through many aspects of our technological society: larger factories produce more cars—the highway builders must plan wider and wider and, if possible, safer highways. These difficulties will multiply as technicians become more ingenious.

Signs of such stresses are already obvious. The more goods we want, the more industrial wastes are dispersed into the air we breathe. In this sense we already participate in the technology of tomorrow.

In these programs, then, Explorations looks at four aspects of technology threatened by progress itself. In each case, experts and citizens have an opportunity to change the future course of events, if they are informed and willing.

This week, in Fertility and Survival, Explorations counts noses.

The world over, more and more babies live longer and easier lives. The easier life becomes, the more our drugs and control over environment improve, the less fit for survival the human race becomes. The question is no longer simply whether in the long run we will all be dead but whether in the long run we will all breed or starve to death. Speculating on our future will be William White Howells of Harvard University and F. Clarke Fraser of McGill University. Mr. Howells is a noted physical anthropologist and author of Man-kind So Far. Mr. Fraser is one of the most distinguished Canadian geneticists.

Subsequent programs will examine the consequences of air pollution, noise and the new field of human engineering. All are subjects which will be increasingly important for Canadians to consider as citizens. As Harrison Brown commented in forecasting the future of technology, "It is quite possible that far more persons would die in the chaotic aftermath of a nuclear war as a result of the breakdown of the industrial network than would be killed directly by explosions."

The host for "Tomorrow is Now" will be Duncan Cameron of the Royal Ontario Museum.

Blast of Hatred

Much hatred has been aroused against the British owing to their love of draughts. It is not only that they like opening windows, it is that they too often take it for granted that other people enjoy open windows. Again and again, in trains or restaurants abroad, have I observed my fellow countrymen fling windows open without realizing that to other races a blast of cold night air is both obnoxious and dangerous to the health. Unconscious of the glances of rage directed towards them, they relapse into their seats glowing with virtue and feeling that they have done their day's good deed.—Sir Harold Nicolson on BBC.

This week Peter Whittall shows how to build a small greenhouse (using plastic instead of glass) and a cold frame. From Toronto.

Ivanhoe

Adventure series based on Sir Walter Scott's famous historical novel. This week—"The Prisoner in the Tower."

Saturday Date

Variety show with Billy O'Connor, Vanda King and Allan Blye. From Toronto.

N.H.L. Hockey

The semi-finals now being in progress (since Tuesday, March 24) it is indefinite as to which teams will be playing Montreal this weekend. This third game of the semi-finals could be played and televised either tonight or tomorrow. (Most of the American teams prefer to play their home games on Sundays). Commentary will be by Danny Gallivan.

Naked City

Drama series based on cases from the New York City police files. This week—"A Running of Bulls." The New York police attempt to foil a plan to assassinate the son of a Latin-American dictator. Starring John McIntire and James Franciscus.

Juliette

Twenty minutes of music with Juliette, Bobby Gimby and his orchestra, and The Romeos vocal quartet. From Toronto.

Radio Listings

• Congratulations on this week's arrangement of radio programs in the Times! Week by week the past months you seem to have been experimenting and we went along, hunting here and there, page by page, day by day for what we wanted. This week we have a full-spread double page to a day. We can leave the Times open on the radio and see it all-time, program notes, even Dominion Network, at a glance. We like it! Thank you! Long may it continue! — Mrs. R. Brownlee, Beresford, Man.

We were indeed experimenting, but our readers' reaction to the day-by-day system has been so favourable that there seems to be no need for any further changes in radio listings. Viewers will also find the same system used for listing television programs in this week's issue.

CBC Folio

• I am writing to express my appreciation of the very fine plays we see on our Canadian television, especially those on G.M. Presents, Folio, and The Unforseen. Indeed, we need not look to our neighbours to the south for our talent, as they have nothing to offer us that we cannot do better. Congratulations especially on the Folio production of Under Milk Wood. The sets and lighting effects were superb, and having lived in Wales for a short time many years ago I thoroughly appreciated its message.

• I am writing to tell you that I don't see why you put that CBC Folio on as it is such trash. I think we should have more westerns and comedies. That Folio is the awfulest stuff I have ever seen and I don't see why it should be put on TV. — G. David, Victoria Beach, Man.

"Friend of the Gun"

• I am a subscriber to CBC Times (Pacific edition) and was interested to notice that on Feb. 19 on Prairie Playhouse a play entitled Freedom of the Gun was to be given from your station. My father was Lieut L. Howard, who came up from Connecticut to man the Gatling gun at the time of the Riel Rebellion. I was a year old at the time and was brought by my mother to Toronto to meet him there on his return. I listened to the play and was thrilled for it was so well written and produced. I did not expect names to be given. My brother George Howard lives in Halifax and I have recently sent him CBC Times. Would the play be given over the maritime stations? I would like to know who the author, Mort Forer, is, and congratulate him. My father was killed in the South African war where he was a major in command of a company of scouts. Mort Forer might also like to know that the working model in silver and gold which was presented to my father by his Connecticut regiment on his return is now in the Archives in Ottawa. — Sarah Howard Buller, Vancouver.

An explanation of the above letter seems to be in order. One of the leading characters in the "Prairie Playhouse" presentation of Feb. 19 was Lieut. Howard—Mrs. Buller's father. Author Mort Forer based the play on his own research into the first use in Canada of the Gatling gun. He was unaware that a daughter—and a son—of Lieut. Howard were still alive. In a later letter to producer Gus Kristjanson Mrs. Buller said again how much she enjoyed the play, but she pointed out that her father did not speak with the American drawl he was given in the radio presentation.

Music and German

• I have been an interested reader of CBC Times since a friend presented me with a subscription several years ago. It provides stimulating and informative reading, and it gives me a sense of anticipation for the coming listening hours to be enjoyed. I enjoy it thoroughly. I would, however, like to enumerate my mortifications concerning programs and the "Times" itself.

First of all, I will join the chorus of disappointed listeners to the New York Philharmonic broadcasts. We never get the complete program now.

No, at 11 p.m. it is cut off in order to make place for—of all things—Polka Party.

Secondly, I am never able to hear Little Symphonies since it was transferred to Monday mornings, when I am at work. I regret this very much since their programs are very much to my taste.

Thirdly, the mistakes in printing foreign languages: In this week's issue, page 26, there are four Schubert songs with the following misprints: "Ganemed" for Ganymed, "Schaffer's Elagelied" for Schaefer's Klageled, "Nahe des geliebten" for Nahe des Geliebten, and "Der Musensehn" for Der Musensohn. I am sure there must be a way to avoid these misprints.—M. K., Winnipeg.

There is: take Grove's Dictionary and hunt through the list of Schubert's 600 songs to check the spellings. We actually do this when we have time. If our copy arrives too close to our printing deadlines we just take a chance. "Little Symphonies" is still being heard on Sunday nights—on the CBC French Network. M.K. can hear it in Winnipeg through the facilities of CKSB, St. Boniface (6:30 p.m. C.S.T.). The Monday morning "Little Symphonies" on Trans-Canada is a rebroadcast of this program.

Westerns

• I have followed with great interest the controversy about "westerns" in CBC Times. To those who praise the "beautiful horses and scenery" may I reply that the "scenery" usually consists of run-down barns, ugly buildings and bartenders' premises where unshaven, dirty, sweaty men gulp liquor or handle cards. The only westerns with some humanity (no longer seen) were The Lone Ranger, Roy Rogers, and some of the Walt Disney productions.—E. Lattes, Edmonton.

French Stories

• M. Gerard Arthur was really helpful to "toddlers in French" when he read something familiar this week on Stories in French. With the text before us we could concentrate on pronunciation and accent. I refer to the Creation and other Bible stories in French. My Version d'Osterwald was not vastly different from the one he used. Beaucoup de thanx!—Enos T. Montour, Qu'Appelle, Sask.

Andrew Dawes On "Concerto"

The last of three young prairie musicians to perform on the CBC radio network series, Concerto, is a 19-year-old Calgary violinist, Andrew Dawes.

He will play Mozart's Concerto in D Major, K. 218, on March 25

with the CBC Winnipeg orchestra conducted by Eric Wild. Concerto is heard Wednesdays at 2:30 p.m. on CBW and at 1:30 p.m. on CBK and CBX.

Andrew recently completed a 15-recital tour of western Canada under the sponsorship of the Registered Music Teachers' Association. Reviewers in all cities from Winnipeg to Vancouver commented enthusiastically on his technical accomplishments and his unusually mature musical intelligence.

Since the age of seven, when he started his violin studies with Clayton Hare in Calgary, Andrew has been a regular winner of examination and music festival awards. He spent two years with Mr. Hare at the University of Portland, and while there won the highest state awards in competitions sponsored by the Federated Music Clubs of the United States. He has appeared as soloist with the Hood River (Oregon) Symphony Orchestra, the Portland Symphony Orchestra, the Calgary Symphony Orchestra and the Saskatoon Symphony Orchestra.

Since last year Andrew has been studying in Saskatoon with Murray Adaskin, head of the department of music at the University of Saskatoon, and serving as concertmaster of the Saskatoon Symphony Orchestra.

He has been heard earlier on CBC in the Distinguished Artists recital series.

Following this Wednesday's performance from Winnipeg Andrew will leave on a recital tour of Ontario, sponsored by the Registered Music Teachers' Association. This will be the first time the Young Artist Series, which originated in western Canada, has been extended to eastern Canada.

Other young prairie artists heard earlier on the Concerto series were pianists Ailsa Lawson and Diedre Irons.

MUSIC ON RADIO

by BOYD NEEL, Dean, Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto

This appears to be "Shostakovich week" and we are to hear two of his best works, both on Sunday. In the morning we hear the Quintet for Piano and Strings, opus 57, and in the evening, the Symphony No. 1, opus 10.

The Quintet has already established itself as one of the finest works in this form since the great quintet writers, Brahms, Franck and Faure. It is a work of maturity, easy to listen to and grateful to the players. The First Symphony, on the other hand, is a mature work of immaturity and it is still astonishing to hear this piece, which seems to wear better and better, and to realize it was written by a boy of 19. It dates from 1924, when Shostakovich and his family were penniless and more or less starving. His father had just died and the composer with his mother and two sisters were struggling to keep body and soul together. Shostakovich played three times a day in a movie house, accompanying silent films, and presented the score of this symphony as a graduation composition at the Conservatory in Leningrad. It was this work that brought him fame and, we presume, more or less fortune, because musicians in Russia are a rather privileged society who can be extremely well paid.

One might think that a work written under such stress would be a solemn and rather portentous composition, but anything livelier and more full of high spirits it is hardly possible to imagine. However, when one begins to know the work very well, one realizes that behind this cheerful facade there is often a note of bitter satire and I think we must remember this when listening to the symphony in order to appreciate it properly. One of the more noticeable things about this score is the large part given to a piano. The fact that a piano will not, and cannot, blend with an orchestra (hence its prominence as a solo concerto instrument) has been used here by

THEATRE IN THE ROUGH

The third in a series of four talks by Victor Leathers, Professor of French at United College, Winnipeg. This week — "Down With Shakespeare." When an English troupe visited Paris to perform Shakespeare's Othello in July, 1822, the climate of opinion in the French capital was hardly favourable to them. The Napoleonic Wars had left their mark in relations between the two countries, and the battle between the proponents of classic and romantic schools of drama was in full flower. Dr. Leathers tells how the English actors tried to make their Parisian stay an artistic success in spite of the turbulent reception they received.

Broadcast Drama in Winnipeg

by GUS KRISTJANSON, CBC Radio Producer

On the evening of November 28, 1928, a drama went out over the airwaves from a radio transmitter in Winnipeg. This was the start of radio drama in this city. Since that time a great variety of radio plays have been done from here—off and on throughout the 'thirties, and on a more regular basis throughout the 'forties and 'fifties.

Occasionally we who are involved with radio drama in Winnipeg are given the opportunity to do a "major" production—a CBC Wednesday Night, perhaps, or an hour-length CBC Summer Stage. For a fleeting moment we feel that we are part of the "big time." Then we relapse once more into doing the less ambitious, somewhat more routine shows which make up our normal stock-in-trade. In some ways, it can be frustrating to be the "poor cousin," as it were, of the large production centres. In other ways it can be challenging as well. With less experience in doing big shows, and perhaps less resources to work with, the triumph is that much greater when we can come up with a first-rate show.

It is usually considered that radio and TV activity are pretty closely associated with drama activity generally in an area. Winnipeg has had its ups and downs in general dramatic activity through the years.

Actually, this city is enjoying somewhat of a renaissance at the moment in the realm of stage productions. Rainbow Stage, Theatre 77 and other projects have been a great boon to Winnipeg theatrical audiences. We can hope that some of this increased activity will gradually make itself felt more and more in the realm of radio and TV drama originations from here. After all, many of the actors are used in the various mediums. However, it must be realized that there are certain factors which attend broadcasting—restricted rehearsal times, etc., which makes it distinctive in its own right. Actors who are at home on the stage do not automatically carry their abilities over to another medium.

One of our problems at this centre is the absence of any sizable

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

The spring issue of Trans-Canada Matinee's 1959 edition of "Cooking School of the Air" begins this week.

The CBC's cooking expert, Mrs. Eustella Langdon, will present the first chapter today. The general theme of Cooking School will be eating for beauty and good health. Mrs. Langdon has compiled menus and recipes for persons on low-calorie diets and for people who cook in small quantities. And because spring is the season that brings garden-fresh fruits and vegetables, Mrs. Langdon will also stress these. Outdoor cookery, becoming more and more popular in Canadian summers, gets a nod, too. As usual, the recipes will be available in supplement form at the conclusion of the series. Today, Mrs. Langdon sets the theme for her forthcoming series with some hints on menus and meal-planning.

Matinee today also features the last in a series of six talks entitled "The Changing World of Childhood" by Betty Henderson of Regina. Today she talks about the works of Wanda Gag whose children's tales about animals, painstakingly illustrated, appealed to generations of North American youngsters.

Another feature of Trans-Canada Matinee today is Toronto free-lance broadcaster Sheila Kenyon's report on prepaid optometric care, which has been inaugurated by the Canadian Association of Optometrists to encourage people to take more care of their eyes.

On the musical portion of Matinee Ken Winters, Winnipeg music critic, will select and introduce recorded music. Today's reading is from Charles Lamb's "The Superannuated Man," an account of a man who retires on a pension to begin a perpetual holiday. It will be read by Henry Comor, a Toronto actor. The news commentator will be Robert Duffy.

CBW-7:00 p.m. CBK-2:33 p.m. CBX-2:33 p.m.

DISTINGUISHED ARTISTS

Violinist George Lapenson with pianist John Newmark.

Sonata Espanola	Turina
Legend	Wienlawski
Caprice No. 23 in E Flat	Paganini
Rondo Variato	Rieti

Born in England of Latvian descent, George Lapenson came to Canada in 1949 and first appeared on the CBC as a contestant on the talent show Opportunity Knocks. He later became concertmaster on the same program. Since then, he has been a leading figure in radio and television as well as in musical events in Montreal.

When a child, Mr. Lapenson left England to study in Latvia, the home of his ancestors, and received his musical training under Adolphe Metz at the Conservatory of Riga. He made his debut in a recital at fourteen and, when still very young, became the concertmaster of the Riga Broadcasting Corporation Orchestra. As a concert artist he gave radio recitals throughout Europe after the Second World War.

CBW-9:30 p.m. CBK-10:30 p.m. CBX-10:30 p.m.

VANCOUVER THEATRE

"The Room," and "The Theatre," studies in insolation by Frank Thiess, translated by Otto Lowy.

CBW-10:00 p.m. CBK-10:00 p.m. CBX-10:00 p.m.

CBW-10:30 p.m. CBK-9:00 p.m. CBX-9:00 p.m.

CONCERT CAMEOS

A special program of recorded music for Easter prepared and presented by Jim Mitchell.

CBW-11:30 p.m.

THE HAPPY GANG

presents its regular program this Monday from Variety Village, Toronto. Variety Village is a home for underprivileged children, sponsored by various entertainment clubs in Canada, and the program will be the third "remote" in aid of the National Crippled Children's Easter Seal campaign. The Gang (left to right): producer Ken Dalziel, Blaine Mathe, Jimmy Namaro, Joe Niosi, emcee Eddie Allen, Lloyd Edwards, Les Foster, announcer Barry Wood, Kathleen Stokes, Bert Niosi, and Bobby Gimby.

Shostakovich with great effect, and it can be defined even in the loudest orchestral tuttis. So seldom is the piano used in orchestral compositions, that this particular score is something of a rarity on this account alone.

On CBC Wednesday Night we can hear Francis Chaplin and George Brough playing one of the loveliest of all violin sonatas, that in A Major by Faure, and on Friday, on CBC Concert Hall, Pierre Souvairan is to give another performance of the Suite by Arnold Walter which he played about a year ago. This is one of the most interesting of contemporary Canadian works.

Also on Wednesday evening there is the radio premiere of a Canadian work — Apocalypse by Violet Archer. The text is taken from the Book of Revelation and the score calls for soprano, chorus, brass sextet and tympani, a striking and original combination. We have not heard much of Miss Archer since she took up her teaching post at the University of Oklahoma. She studied with Hindemith when he was teaching at Yale in 1949 and very often her music is not unlike that of the master. She has many works to her credit and her name is well known in Europe and the United States.

By the way, on Good Friday afternoon there is a film on television which shows Pablo Casals, the great cellist, playing Bach's Suite No. 1. The film shows him in his home at Prades in the Pyrenees and the performance of the Bach Suite serves as a concluding climax.

THE REITH LECTURES

"The Origin of the Universe"—last of six lectures by Prof. A. C. B. Lovell, professor of radio astronomy at the University of Manchester and director of the Jodrell Bank Experimental Station, under the general title "The Individual and the Universe." Dr. Lovell summarizes tonight's talk as follows:

(6) The Origin of the Universe—II

Evolutionary theories of the origin of the universe, like that of Abbe Lemaitre, command a wide measure of support among contemporary astronomers. But they represent only one group of theories. An alternative is found in the steady state theories. According to these the universe has always been as it is today and always will be. There is no beginning and no end. Throughout infinite space creation is going on continuously: now and always the primeval gas is being created from which the galaxies have evolved and are still evolving. It is probably true to say that the main issue in present day cosmology is the conflict between the evolutionary and steady state theories. The difference between them is clearly fundamental and of the greatest importance both to science and philosophy. It is a momentous thought that we may soon be able to settle by experimental observation which of the two principles is correct.

corps of professional actors. Since there is not enough broadcast activity to make it possible under normal circumstances to earn a reasonable living from acting alone, we have to rely for the most part on "part-time" actors—those who work at another job during normal office hours. Performers, therefore, don't get the opportunity to develop in the way they would were they able to devote themselves to it on a full time basis. Or, if they do develop considerable proficiency in radio acting, they are all too prone to leave the city for more distant and more lucrative fields.

Our principal problem so far as acting talent is concerned lies in the younger age group—the very group from whom you must frequently draw your male and female leads. With the more mature voices, we still have a core of performers who have been carrying the burden of radio acting throughout the years, and are still doing so. We find ourselves much more limited when it comes to finding suitable performers to do the younger roles.

In the field of writing talent, likewise, there is an absence in the quantity of good writers. There seem to be very few writers on the prairies who are making any serious attempt to write for radio. Our most prolific writer through the past few years has been Marian Waldman, who is likewise one of our hardest working actresses. It is not uncommon in Canadian radio to see writers doubling as performers, and I think this is a good thing. A direct working association with a show is invaluable. If it is at all feasible, I like to include the author of a play as a member of the cast of that play. It is convenient sometimes for the producer to be able to discuss points of dramatic intention with the writer. Also I think it helps the writer to be a performer—particularly in the writing of dialogue. It gives him or her a feel as to the kind of dialogue that "speaks well." If the writer is not an actor, I like to encourage him or her to sit in on a rehearsal of a show to gain some idea of production problems. The closer a writer can feel to the working problems of broadcasting, the better.

A drama producer is frequently asked what kind of scripts he prefers doing. And the standard answer to this is: any kind, as long as they play well. Certainly I know that I can become interested in a wide variety of scripts, although I feel that certain kinds fit our talent resources better than others. Generally speaking, I think it more desirable from an audience point of view that each region should contribute something which is distinctive in the way of dramatic offerings—plays which have a different "sound" from that of the other regions. For example, I have generally tried to include a rather large proportion of scripts with a prairie setting—partly because it seems appropriate, and partly because the other regions are not as likely to be doing this. Not that we have succeeded in developing a distinctive "prairie type" of drama, but I think it is something worth working toward.

"Women Want To Know"—What are food additives? Why are they used and in what foods? Who decides whether they are harmful or beneficial? Does the consumer always know whether or not they have been added to a product? A panel of consumer-conscious women from Ottawa today ask these and other questions of a representative of the food and drug directorate of the Department of National Health and Welfare in Matinee's second broadcast in this series.

"Each At His Own Pace"—Windsor's school children don't proceed through their school classes a grade every year. In Windsor, and in a few other Canadian schools, the unit system has been adopted and is proving very successful. Each subject consists of a certain number of prescribed units and the child may take as many, or as few of them in a year as his abilities and his capabilities permit. Elizabeth Masson has interviewed teachers and parents who talk about the success of the unit system in Windsor's schools. Mrs. Masson is a newspaperwoman and freelance broadcaster.

On the musical portion of Matinee today Ken Winters, Winnipeg music critic, will select and introduce recorded music. Today's reading is from "A Visit To Erindale in 1837." In December, 1836, a lively and charming woman of letters arrived in Toronto, Upper Canada, to try to mend a marriage that had gone awry at home in England. She found the husband who had come out some time before even stuffier and more conservative than she remembered, and the reconciliation was a failure. However, this personal disappointment didn't prevent Anna Jameson from observing acutely and with humour the country and the people who were so new to her. Today actress Aileen Seaton reads her account of a visit to Erindale in the spring of 1837. Today's news commentator will be Robert Duffy.

EUROPEAN DRAMA

Continuing its contemporary European drama series, CBC Wednesday Night this week presents the North American premiere of "The Word," a play by Danish clergyman of letters Kaj Munk (1898-1944) who ranks as one of the more striking figures of contemporary Scandinavian drama. Dealing as it does with religious considerations, it is well suited to performance during the Lenten season. It will be produced by Esse W. Ljungh, with music composed by Morris Surdin. Leading roles will be played by John Drainie and Douglas Rain.

Munk's literary production began in plays, a travel book on Palestine, two the late 1920's and includes eight volumes of verse, a sheaf of hunting letters, a large batch of articles, essays, and sketches for the daily press, and a posthumous volume of sermons. After the Nazi invasion of his homeland in 1939 Munk became one of the most outspoken critics of the invader until he was murdered by a band of Nazi assassins in January, 1944.

The year before his death, Munk wrote his best historical play, "Niels Ebbensen," in which he employs as the central figure a Danish national hero who in the late middle ages had defied the German oppressors of his homeland. Munk is most successful, however, in his one purely religious play, tonight's "The Word." This play not infrequently employs theatrical devices of a not very subtle kind, and yet it moves from scene to scene with a sure dramatic touch and brings its story to a close with an overwhelming cumulation of dramatic power.

Central character in "The Word" is a half-demented youth who is to show "the way" to a group of self-righteous religious sectarians who did not have the courage of their convictions in the hour of crisis. Although this youth has a role loosely paralleled to that of Eleanor in Strindberg's "Easter," Munk's play seems to be a wholly original dramatic conception with its alternately satiric and sympathetic treatment of religious sectarianism and its final use of "the miracle" to produce a logical dramatic denouement. "The Word" created a considerable stir when first produced in Denmark, and attracted many people who were not in the habit of attending the theatre.

A Boy Confirmed

For life is waiting for him, to wrest the innocence from his young boy's eyes,

So I write urgently for this beloved person, and indeed for all beloved persons,

I write indeed for any person, whoever may find something in these words.

The writer is Alan Paton, a poet and novelist (Cry, the Beloved Country, Too Late the Phalarope) who has spent the active part of his life helping human beings. The quotation is from his poem, Meditation for a Young Boy Confirmed, which will be read this week on CBC Wednesday Night.

Meditation is a father's cry from the heart as he receives a letter from his son telling of his confirmation. "Life sees you coming," writes Paton. "She sees you come with assurance towards her. She lies in wait for you; she cannot but hurt you." And against the world—the enemies, dragons and apparitions, he calls them—he offers his son one weapon—faith. He sees the confirmation service as a commitment, to be followed, each in its turn, by dedication, apostasy and restoration. He urges his son not to be dismayed by the "thousand sins" that will follow his acceptance.

*They are a thousand holes to capture essence, a shell to house
the thunder of an ocean,*

A discipline of petty acts to catch creation, a rune of words to hold One Living Word,

A ladder built by men of sticks and stones, whereby they hope to reach to heaven.

The Wednesday Night production by John Reeves will include arrangements of the Gregorian chants, Veni Creator, Vexilla Regis, Pange Lingua, and Veni Sancte Spiritus, arranged and directed by Godfrey Ridout.

The life of South African Alan Paton betrays two fierce drives: to express himself as an artist and to get out and help his fellow man in a more active, physical sense. "It is my conscience that urges me to take some part in public life," he says, "whereas my inclinations urge me to write, not articles but stories."

On leaving university he got a teaching job at Ixopo, the Zulu country he wrote about in Cry, the Beloved Country. His next step was in the field of prison reform and at South Africa's Diepkloof Reformatory he earned a reputation as "the man who pulled up barbed-wire fences and planted geraniums" for a far-sighted experiment in graduated restraint. Working among what might be called native juvenile delinquents he instituted a system where varying degrees of freedom and confinement became the main rewarding and punitive forces. His first novel, Cry, the Beloved Country, was written on trains and in hotel rooms while he was on a tour of penal institutions in Sweden, England, the U.S. and Canada.

Paton is one of a number of people who formed the Liberal Association of South Africa which challenges the racial theories of white supremacy. He was recently convicted (the conviction was later set aside) of fraternizing with natives because he attended a mixed meeting of natives and whites.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

"The Normal Child"—In this Matinee series on the development of the normal child, Toronto housewife and mother Louise Yolles has been asking questions of child psychiatrists Dr. John Rich about the behaviour patterns she might expect in her own children. The two continue their conversation today.

"Growing Up In Two Languages"—The wide worlds of literature that are opened up to a child who reads two languages with equal facility are recalled by Arline Genereux in this series of reminiscences about her childhood in a completely bilingual household. Miss Genereux is retired and lives in her native Quebec.

The reading today is from "Criticism of Female Beauty" by Leigh

Hunt. Hunt, the English essayist and poet, friend of Byron, Shelley, and a vocal admirer of John Keats, was sometimes a rather prickly and outspoken person to have around. Many of his essays got him into trouble. Toronto actor Ivor Barry reads one of them on today's program.

On the musical portion of Matinee Joan Maxwell of Winnipeg will select and introduce recorded music.

be done by American crews and equipment with the play descriptions and commentaries being handled by Canadian announcers.

The biggest problem rink was the Chicago Stadium where a small press box, located at one end, is barely adequate to accommodate the press people in attendance. It was finally decided to select a block of seats in the first balcony there to house the broadcast personnel, cameras and microphones (the American TV network coverage has been done in this way).

An interesting note is that the New York Rangers will be able to play their home playoff games at home for the first time in a long time. Heretofore their home rink, Madison Square Garden, has been taken over by a circus at this time. The circus actually will be there this year, too, but will be closed during playoff games and, by some incredible large-scale sleight-of-hand, the animals, equipment, props, etc., will be secreted in, around and under the arena.

Madison Square Garden in New York City and the Boston Gardens in Boston do not present any physical problems since both arenas have overhanging vertical balconies to which are attached steel baskets to accommodate broadcast personnel and equipment. The Olympia in Detroit is well set up, too, since three U.S. stations and one in Windsor regularly cover the games there and it will just be a matter of co-operating with the one covering a particular play-off game (at the time of writing the Detroit Red Wings, like the Toronto Maple Leafs are down but not out).

Officials have also been busy planning intermission features which probably will include chats with some old-time hockey players as well as others who have retired from the N.H.L. in recent years.

A Time for Silence

"In politics there are times for silence, just as much as there are times for speech. While there are occasions when men require the proclamation of a common faith, there are others when it is only in the silence of theory that new common actions, and so eventually new common thoughts, can start to grow. We are living now in such a twilight the price of human survival is that we all must sacrifice at least part of our political ideas; but these ideas are so fixed and comprehensive that we cannot make concessions or argue our way out of them to something new." — J. P. Corbett, on BBC.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Today Kathleen Teltsch, United Nations correspondent for the New York Times, brings her weekly report on what's new "At the U.N."

Matinee's "Guest of the Month" is contralto Maureen Forrester, a Canadian artist who has won acclaim in Europe as well as on this continent. In today's interview, Miss Forrester tells Ruby Mercer, also a well-known musician and broadcaster, something about her life, her work and her artistic triumphs. Matinee's Good Friday "Guest of the Month" interview will be followed by recordings of Miss Forrester singing works by Mahler. Miss Mercer will tell listeners something about the songs.

"Rockhounds"—When is silver not silver? Or aquamarine merely apatite? —When you're chipping away at some rocks in an old mine dump and get carried away in your enthusiasm, according to Helen Bush. Mrs. Bush and a group of her Toronto friends belong to the Walker Mineralogical Club of Toronto and call themselves "Rockhounds." In a Matinee talk, she describes some of her rock-hunting expeditions.

On this special day each year, it's become something of a tradition to have a reading from the Bible, both to mark this Christian festival and to help us remember the great continuity which links the Hebrew world to the Christian. This year's readings are by Toronto actor Alan King.

FOUR PRODUCERS

season, and that the need to do a thing differently forces one to go to such extremes that sometimes the value of the story is completely lost in unnatural angles and trick photographic effects.

JARROTT: I like experimentation, though! Of course, gimmicks can be overdone, but a limited use of new techniques is a way of capturing audience interest. For instance, using the camera as a person—we see events through the person's eyes. Or stylized treatment of sets—getting away from realism, so that we can explore reactions and emotions in more depth.

ZIGOURAS: Yes. So far in Winnipeg we've been using sparse scenery — mostly set pieces against bare cycs. No attempt is made at scenic reality. We've been successful in adapting plays to this, but I wish more writers would write for our style of producing.

ALBAN: We can certainly stand novelty of presentation. But we mustn't lose sight of the classic construction of any play.

THORNE: When experimenting results in aping a movie scenario, I'd say no to it. So many writers are blind to the physical limitations of the TV studio. They hand in scripts which, when you count the sets involved, make production utterly impracticable.

JARROTT: Yes. A case in point is the script which asks the camera to follow too closely. I mean, we can't follow a man from his livingroom, all the way upstairs, and into his bedroom, without constructing an enormous and involved set. The camera must cut from livingroom to bedroom—and give the actor time to get from one set to the other.

ZIGOURAS: If you get away from realistic sets, of course, there's more freedom of construction. But if a script does shift in time, for instance, I must feel a reason exists for it. Too often, a writer does it to jazz up an insipid story. A bad story told backwards is still a bad story.

THORNE: I'd list as the most common weakness in playwriting an unawareness of the importance of movement towards its end. Once a playwright begins his play, he has one goal and that is to arrive at his climax. And the climax (in a half-hour play) is inevitably a half-hour from the beginning. The playwright who knows his craft knows the value and purpose of every tiny scene of his play. The constant question should be—how does this scene help to propel the play towards its climax? Scenes that have no function other than to amuse the playwright must be cut out. When each scene inevitably leads to the next, then the playwright can say his play has movement.

ALBAN: What we've been saying applies to all TV drama, of course. Any last thoughts about the half-hour play in particular? I'd say: keep away from too many short scenes.

THORNE: I'd like to see all writers think of the half-hour as something very special—an uninhibited, undivided length of time where there can be unity of form and thought.

ZIGOURAS: I think if the writer were to think of half-hour TV as a form of arena staging, and write accordingly, we might get a highly-charged, imaginative script. A man talks to the camera, say, setting up the exposition quickly and economically. He turns and we're in the set—say a livingroom, only it's just a chair or table in limbo. The scene finishes, the narrator carries on. He walks onto another set piece, and the play goes on. I know this "Our Town" concept isn't new—but I don't think it's been explored enough on TV.

JARROTT: And why aren't our writers essaying romance any more? We tend to forget that the prime motive of drama is to entertain. Everybody seems to have a message to shout nowadays.
